"There was a man who made clothes pins from scraps of wood; one who fixed bikes; and another who sharpened knives and scissors, and mended pots — or perhaps it was the same man. These workshops were in front porches or sheds, where men worked all alone, usually with the door open, never seeming to notice a line of watching children."

Garrett Augustus Morgan, Sr. (March 4, 1877 – July 27, 1963) was an American inventor and community leader of African-American descent. Morgan invented an early version of a gas mask called a smoke hood, and created the first traffic light that included a third "warning" position which is standard today. Morgan also developed a chemical that was used in hair products for hair-straightening.
