Abstract. For discourse analysts, the notion of context is a key factor that differentiates approaches to data analysis. While most approaches involve a micro-level analysis of stretches of text or talk, it is the â€œbreadth of contexts in which utterances are consideredâ€• (Gordon, 2009, p. 192) that varies among approaches.

Context-free languages (CFLs) are generated by context-free grammars. The set of all context-free languages is identical to the set of languages accepted by pushdown automata, and the set of regular languages is a subset of context-free languages. An input language is accepted by a computational model if it runs through the model and ends in an accepting final state.
